Director's Message

As the summer sun begins to fade and the crispness of fall makes its way into the air, we are reminded of what a special time of year this is in Sheridan. Fall is a season of change, not only in the beautiful scenery that surrounds us but also in the ways we come together as a community to enjoy recreation, wellness, and connection.

Youth sports are in full swing, bringing energy, teamwork, and excitement to our community. From football and volleyball to cross country, our young athletes are out on the fields, courts, and trails, building skills, making friends, and creating memories that will last a lifetime. Basketball is right around the corner, promising even more opportunities for our youth to stay active and engaged throughout the season.

Beyond organized sports, the Big Horn Mountains call to us with their vibrant colors and cooler temperatures. Hiking and hunting among the turning aspens and cottonwoods is an experience like no other. Trails that were lively with summer traffic now offer a quieter pace, perfect for reflection and exploration. The fall air brings with it a refreshing sense of renewal, whether you are enjoying a weekend hike, casting a line in a favorite stream, or simply taking a walk through our local city parks. Recreation in fall is about embracing the transition. We get to enjoy the outdoors in new ways, from crisp evening practices to weekend adventures in the mountains. It's a reminder that recreation is not just about play, it is about well-being, connection, and finding joy in the changing seasons.

As cooler weather approaches and we prepare for winter, I encourage you to take every opportunity to step outside, breathe in the autumn air, and celebrate all the recreational opportunities our community and natural surroundings provide. Whether it is through sports, hiking, or simply enjoying the beauty of falling leaves, fall gives us the chance to slow down, reconnect, and fully appreciate the outdoors.

Here is to a season filled with activity, beauty, and community.

Alexander Mock

Executive Director

Sheridan Recreation District
